A method for developing prospects to recover valuable components on identified property of an interest owner Making available to potential prospecting participants through a computer based network a first set of property information for the identified property and interest owner conditions under which a potential prospecting participant will submit a proposal for prospecting the property including a compensation selectable by the participant and content requirements for the proposal for prospecting Receiving by the interest owner through a computer based network from a potential prospecting particpant, who has agreed to said interest owner conditions, a proposal for prospecting the property Evaluating the proposal for prospecting submitted to the interest owner to determine if it is acceptable to the interest owner Awarding rights to prospect the property to such potential prospecting participant if the proposal for prospecting is acceptable to the interest owner Allowing the participant given the award to access through a computer based network an additional set of property information comprising a detailed property database residing on a computer network controlled by the interest owner to allow such participant to interpret data from the database and prepare an interpretation report identifying at least one specific prospect on the property potentially containing valuable components

FIG 1

